Van Ash, Kay
Ten Years Beyond Baker Street
These are far from complete. Some I would not read, like the series in which Holmes marries! Hardly!

There are a number of out of print collections of writings by the famous Holmes groups, like the Baker Street Irregulars and the The Speckled Band. They debate such issues as ‘What is the chronology of the stories’ to ‘Was Holmes an Oxford or a Cambridge man?’. Rex Stout once wrote (tongue-in-cheek) a piece titled "Watson Was a Woman".

There are a number of associational titles, too.

Asimov, Isaac
The Black Widowers (more)

Boucher, Anthony
The Case Of the Baker Street Irregulars

Derleth, August or Basil Copper
Solar Pons (more)

Greene, Hugh, editor
The Rivals of Sherlock Holmes,
The Further Rivals of Sherlock Holmes,
Cosmopolitan Crimes
(stories contemporary with Holmes and Watson)

Queen, Ellery
Many, many titles and anthologies
(One of the U.S. answers to S.H.)

Symons, Julian
A Three Pipe Problem
(by one of the masters of mysteries)

Claudia Reynolds
